

Important Information About your Privacy

Because Your Trust is so Important

For over 100 years, trust has been the foundation of our customer relationships. That is why we work tirelessly to protect your privacy. Century Bank & Trust is committed to maintaining the highest standards to protect the privacy of information shared with us. We have no intentions of selling personal information about our customers to third-party businesses. We are proud to make that commitment to you, because your trust is the cornerstone of our business.

Notice of Your Financial Privacy Rights

Century Bank & Trust collects nonpublic personal information about you from the following sources:

- Information we receive from you on applications or other forms;
- Information about your transactions with us or others; and
- Information we receive from a consumer reporting agency.

We do not disclose any nonpublic personal information about you to anyone, except as permitted by law. We may disclose all of the information we collect, as described above, to other financial institutions with whom we have joint marketing agreements.

If you decide to close your account(s) or become an inactive customer, we will adhere to the privacy policies and practices as described in this notice.

Century Bank & Trust restricts access to your personal and account information to those employees or third-party service providers who need to know the information to provide products or services to you. Century Bank & Trust maintains physical, electronic, and procedural safeguards that comply with federal standards to guard your nonpublic personal information.

While no response to this privacy notice is required, you may have questions or concerns about our privacy policy and information practices after you read this notice. If so, contact us at (478) 453-3571. Thank you for banking with Century Bank & Trust
